Editorial Board Vacancies

The IET Image Processing Journal has seen a steady and substantial increase in the number of paper submissions in recent years and now seeks to expand its Editorial Board through the recruitment of additional Associate Editors to enhance its services to its authors and readers in line with this expansion in demand.

The role of Associate Editor (AE), involves interactions with authors, reviewers and the rest of the editorial team, to ensure the timely communication of important new knowledge for the benefit of society. For the AEs, it is a valuable means of keeping in touch with emerging research ideas and helping in the process of their publication to a high quality.

We are looking for AEs with research interests spanning the entire range of the scope of the journal. In particular, we seek AEs with expertise in the areas of medical imaging and security applications. Individuals with significant experience of research publications, as authors and reviewers, within the scope of the journal are now invited to apply to join the Editorial Board. We aim that the Board should be as diverse as possible in terms of gender, nationality and other characteristics in order to best serve our authors and readers worldwide.

If you are interested in helping our journal in its mission through joining the Board as an AE or to find out more about this role, please write to us at the address below providing information regarding your background, motivation and experience. We look forward to hearing from you.
